PREPAREDNESS!

Here is a matter that we wish to urge for the consideration of every farmer in the state. To prevent the reaction of a winter wheat crop failure against the spring wheat crop, every farmer should reserve at least fifty bushels of spring wheat for seed. Should the winter wheat crop fail, the spring wheat crop will in no way be held up on account of seed. On the other hand, if the winter wheat crop is good the wheat held in reserve will no doubt be worth as much as at present. There was a great reduction of acreage of spring wheat this year due to inability to get seed, and much that was put in was, for the same reason, planted late. Farmers will find the banks glad to furnish money with which to buy seed. This is just another of those acts of preparedness for which we have great need.

Sarah—When I married you I thought you were a brave man. John—So did everybody else.
